A New Restaurant May Open Soon In Town's East End

A liquor license transfer, expected to be approved at the Tuesday night, July 14, Borough Council meeting, will affect the future of one restaurant, now closed, as well as of another, which hopes to open some time soon.

The license would be transferred from the currently shut-down Quilty's Restaurant on Witherspoon Street to Hopewell Holdings LLC. The four-person group that comprises Hopewell Holdings is expected to reopen Ouilty's, use the liquor license there, and then transfer it to a new restaurant it is planning to open in the Orchid Center, at the corner of Nassau and Olden

The Orchid Center, owned by Ray and Elsie Pang, now contains the Thai Vilfage restaurant. It once also included Carver's, a takeout food operation with no seating, which has moved to Wild Oats Market; and the Emerald Coffee Company, which has gone out of business.

Conditions Outlined for Library Land Swap

Palmer Square Management's acquisition of the library building at 65 Witherspoon Street, in exchange for a 15,000-square-foot parcel of land on Paul Robeson Place for new library construction, moved a little closer to realization on Monday evening.

In a lengthy foint closed session on July 13, members of Borough Council and Township Committee reviewed a memorandum outlining conditions of the land swap, to which the two municipalities, the library board, and Palmer Square Management could all agree.

The two municipal groups emerged from the meeting at 9 p.m., to give their unanimous consent to the "Memorandum of Understanding."

"I am personally delighted that the Committee and Council gave their unanimous consent to the memorandum," commented Harry Levine, president of the library board of trustees. "It is the first major milestone toward making the project a

Rushbrook Development Receives Final Approval from Planning Board

If the D&R Canal Commission removes a conservation easement, construction may begin as early as November on 21 new homes at Rushbrook Development off Pretty Brook Road.

The Planning Board last Thursday night gave final subdivision and site plan approval to Phase II of the Rushbrook development, subject to meeting all the conditions laid down when preliminary approval was given in July 1993.

The applicant before the Planning Board was Princeton Real Estate, Inc., which plans to develop the property owned by trustees of the Georges deMenil Family Trusts.

Phase f of the subdivision received final approval in February 1997. This comprises approximately 23 acres of the total 108 acres, and was divided into three residential building lots. The remaining 85 acres are included in Phase II.

A major condition of the preliminary approval granted by the

The D&R Canal Commission holds furisdiction on the site, which goes over a stream, under stream corridor review regulations. Thomas Letizia, attorney for Princeton Real Estate, Inc., said he has visited the D&R Canal Commission to request an easement, and that he expects a decision will be made on Wednesday, July 15.

Planning Board Attorney Allan Porter said that the Board will not remove any conditions, and that if the provisions can't be met, the Board will vote against approval.

Mr. Letizia told the Planning Board that he had a good sense that the Canal Commission will grant the easement for the emergency access road and bike path.

He was reminded several times that all conditions, including the Drafted to agree with a new state law, the ordinance sets zones cover the distributing, dispensing, or possessing with intent to distribute a controlled dangerous substance in, on, or within 500 feet of real property made up of a public housing facility, a public park, or a public building.

In a discussion last month, several members of Council voiced concern that the ordinance would affect almost all Borough land, with very little of the 1.7 mile Borough unaffected. Those areas that would not fall within the ordinance were largely situated on the west and east ends of the Borough.

There were several comments that the 500-foot ruling would cut up neighborhoods, and that it would be difficult to explain why someone just across the street would receive an enhanced penalty in a conviction.

Once in bankruptcy, the Carnegie Center buildings, along with Landis-owned Tower Center One in East Brunswick, fetched $284 million. Boston Properties also has an option to purchase the three other existing buildings in the Route 1 complex.

The sale indicates the significant upturn in the region's commercial real estate market from the early 1990s. when all 12 Carnegie Center buildings were in bankruptcy at various times.

Mr. Landis said he had been through a number of bad cycles in the real estate business, "but none quite as bad as the downturn we had in the early 1990s."

Carnegie Center, at 2 million square feet, is second in size in the region only to Princeton Forrestal Center.

Under the terms of the sale, Mr. Landis will join Boston Properties' board of directors and will be responsible for continuing the development of the Carnegie Center.

He will maintain his 45member office and expects to soon break ground for the region's first speculative To Boston Company office building in many years: three-story, 115,000square-foot structure on the southern end of Carnegie

Indecent Exposure On Witherspoon St. Is Second of Summer

A 40-year-old John Street man was arrested for lewdness July 7 after a woman told police he held and exposed his genitals while standing on Witherspoon Street near Leigh Avenue.

The alleged indecent exposure occurred at 8:50 a.m. police said. Andrew Moroze was arrested in his home at 9:05, after a police officer heard the victim describe a flasher who flt his description.

The incident was the second arrest for lewdness on Witherspoon Street this season. On June 10, Witherspoon resident Marcelo Gonzalez was arrested for allegedly masturbating on his glass-enclosed front porch.

Moroze was later released with a July 14 court date.

Burglar Caught

Township Officer Peter Young responded to a susplclous person call on Princeton-Kingston Road near Carnegie Lake at 3:00 p.m. Friday, and found Russell J. O'Connell Jr., 34, leaving the driveway of a residence there, police said.

While questioning O'Connell, Young heard a car-alarm. Arriving officers investigated the scene and found a garage had been broken into and the vehicle out mattress on fire on boy was arrested on Clay Inside had been ransacked.

The increase is parking meter and parking lot rates approved by Borough Council in May has begun to go into effect. Most electronic meters in the Central Business District have been changed to reflect the increase in the hourly rate from 60 to 75 cents. And adjacent signs display the new meter cut-off time of 7 p.m.

New Higher Parking Rates

Are Appearing in Borough

Beginning last week, some patrons of the Park & Shop lot on Spring Street may have been surprised to find that the half hour of free parking they had been used to had been eliminated. Instead, the new Borough parking ordinance provides a full hour of free parking before 6 p.m. and two free hours after 6. But this free time is given only to patrons of the library.

in order to get the free time, library users must have their parking ticket validated at the circulation desk. They then must present the validated ticket, along with their library card, to the lot attendant.

The provision of two free hours after 6 p.m. reflects the fact that the new ordinance extends Park & Shop lot hours from 6 to 9 p.m.

Employees of the Public Works Department are continuing to change all the approximately 800 meters affected by the rate hike, and are working out from the center of town.

While the meters on Nassau Street will reflect the new hourly rate, the extension of meter hours from 6 to 7 p.m. will have to wait until approval is received from the State D.O.T. This is because Nassau Street Is a State highway.

The ordinance introduced by Borough Council on April 21 had raised the meter rate in the Central Business district to 94 cents an hour. But this amount was lowered to 75 cents at the time of the final vote. Two of the Council members who had supported the higher rate, Mildred Trot- Participants will learn how to man and Bill Slover, were absent at this meeting.

All through the spring, public statements during Council discussions of the new ordinance had been almost unlformly opposed to the increase to 94 cents. The main focus of the comments was concern by restaurant owners and merchants that the high meter rates would affect business by discouraging people from coming into town

Group Home Issues

New Jersey is advocating the shutdown of large institutions for developmentally disabled adults, and a number of .omeowners are worried.

The state shut down a 523-bed center in Somerset County this spring; officials are considering closing three similar centers during the next few years. The state wants to shorten a waiting list for thousands of people seeking placement in group homes and apartments, as well.

Advocates for the disabled say that placement outside Institutions will greatly improve the quality of life for their constituents.

It costs the state $90,000 a year to keep a resident in an Institution, compared with $60,000 in the community, according to a recent study.

Parents of some disabled patients, however, object to the trend toward group homes, saying that moving their children would be too traumatic.

Local zoning officials also want some input as to where the homes are located. Only state officials can block a group home at the present time. The state recently adopted an "oversaturation policy," however, that allows officials to stop a home from being located in a town with "too many" factlities. The policy has been used only once — in Somerville.

Shark Saga

A coalition of environmental groups has charged that New Jersey and other coastal states are not doing enough to protect sharks, "severely threatened" by overfishing.

A new report by the Ocean Wildlife Campaign criticizes New Jersey and Louisiana, especially, for having "no shark management whatsoever.'

Susan Southard, spokesperson for the NJ Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), disputes the charge, say-Ing the state already has rules and is working on additional ones. She notes that the state and its Marine Fisheries Council are drafting recommendations that, after a public hearing will become state regulations.

The recommendations include establishing a two-sharkper-boat limit and prohibiting the sale of more than two sharks per vessel.

Federal law governs fishing in waters from three to 200 miles off shore. Within the three-mile limit, however, state law applies. Sharks in state water are subject to overfishing where federal rules are inapplicable. New Jersey was fourth among states for the commercial landing of sharks in 1996.

Roadside Fundraising

Under a state law that took effect last month, charities are no longer permitted to raise money through roadside collections from motorists, without municipal and county approval. Town and county officials have the right to veto any collections they consider dangerous.

Critics of roadside collection have long argued that pedestrians on a road - where the speed limit may be 35 to 50 miles per hour — pose a definite traffic hazard. They also say the public has no guarantee that money dropped into a tin can at a curbside will get to its intended destination.

Some counties - including Essex, Morris, Somerset, and Union - don't keep track of whether a group has a permit or not, leaving roadside fundraising decisions up to the individual municipality, despite the law.

'Snake Man' to Present Program in Rocky Hill

The Mary Jacobs Library, 64 Washington Street, Rocky Hill, will present "Live Snakes!" on Wednesday, July 29, at 1, for children, ages 6 and older.

Snake Man Paul Volz will present an Informal nature lecture, and will provide opportunities for questions and answers. He will show several live, non-venomous snakes, most of which are indigenous to the area.

The audience will learn about snakes' feeding habits. as well as their locomotion. reproduction, hibernation, and defense systems. Mr. Volz will also discuss snakes as pets and snake bite treatment and prevention.

The Snake Man has been bringing his live snake program to audiences for more than 30 years. Recently retired, he now works fulltime showing and telling about his favorite reptile.

The program is free, but registration is required. For more information, cail the library, at 924-7073.

WHERE DO YOUR FOOd DOLLASS GO?

At the Whole Earth Center, your food dollars go to supporting community environmental projects. The Whole Earth Center was founded in 1970. with a mandate to fund projects & organizations that protect natural resources & provide education about environmental issues. Here is a sampling of the projects we have been involved with over the past 28 years.

PRINCETON PUBLIC LIBRARY

We provide ongoing funding to the Public Library for > the purchase of books on health, nutrition & the environment.

DIGGING THE WHOLE

We commissioned & created a play about environmental preservation that reached over 60,000 children & was performed at the International Children's Festival.

CANAL CLEAN-UP

On Earth Day 1990, the Whole Earth Center organized a community clean-up of the canal & towpath between the Kingston Lock and Turning Basin Park. Over 237 bags & 13 barrels of trash were collected.

EARTH ADVOCATES

The Whole Earth Center provided funds to this Stoney Brook Millstone Watershed Association program that trained 250 high school students to serve as environmental advocates.

PESTICIDE CAMPAIGN

We organized an ongoing grassroots campaign to minimize pesticide use on lawns and gardens & to initiate an Integrated Pest Management program for Princeton's schools & parks.

FRIENDS OF PRINCETON OPEN SPACE

We contributed funds that were used to help develop Turning Basin Park.

ISLES

The Whole Earth Center funded an environmental education program that has reached over 6,000 Trenton area children.

COMMUNITY TREE PLANTINGS

We have donated over $5,000 worth of trees to local organizations -such as Isles, Trees for Trenton, & the Pettoranello gardenerswho choose trees that are appropriate to their setting & are large enough to have a good chance at survival.

Two new stores, scheduled to open at 20 Nassau Street, may help give the western end ol town the kind of marketing push it has needed.

The two are The Red Onion, a takeout cafe, and Sweet Kendall, a shop that has been offering its own brand of casual chic clothing for women and children for the past seven years from its store on Palmer

The Red Onion, which was the site of Image Photo until it moved next door, will be a 765 square foot takeout food establishment. No cooking will be done on site, but the owner, Jeannette Levin, will offer a varied menu. This will Include sandwiches, salads, soups, and lowcalorie entrees.

Sweet Kendall, which hopes to be in its new location August 1, plans to take advantage of the additional space offered to expand its selection for children. Store owner Maureen Haring said she will offer a larger selection of infant, layette, and gift items for children, as well as special occasion dresses, including First Communion dresses.

Spirit of Princeton Plans Ceremony for Worn Flags

Ray Wadsworth and The Spirit of Princeton are ask-ing the Princeton community to help them dispose properly of tattered American flags. Mr. Wadsworth asks that anyone whose flag needs replacing should not throw it out, but should take it to The Flower Market, 261/2 Witherspoon

In October, The Spirit of Princeton — the organization that brought back to Princeton the Memorial Day Parade and July 4 fireworks - will hold a ceremony in which the flags will be burned, said Mr. Wadsworth, who added that Princeton American Legion Post 76 and Princeton American Legion Post 218 will participate.

"Instead of having people throw their flags out, we will have a ceremony to put Old Glory to rest," sald Mr. Wadsworth.

He added that he already had several flags walting for the October ceremuny, and that more will be added when the American flags on Nassau Street are taken duwn in September, After several summers, a number of these flags are in need of replacement.

It's not that they don't want the matter resolved, Mayor Marchand said. Both mayors, central element of the Hulfish as well as local officials, want to know if any environmental problems are likely to hold up

"Should PSE&G have to make the parking lot inaccessible, the library wants adequate notification time," Mayor Marchand explained. "The municipalities want to make sure PSE&G approves the conditions. We all want to move ahead as fast as possible.

"If we give PSE&G access for testing, we need to be more precise in our requirements," Mayor Reed added, noting that the municipalities were still working out their directive. "The worst case scenario is that PSE&G might have to replace some soil; we don't want too many parking spaces out of commission."

Borough Council will approve the flual arrangements at its meeting on July 28; Township Committee is expected to sign off on the matter on August 3.

Mayor Reed sald PSE&G has agreed to accelerate its work at the library. He said, also, that wherever the library Is eventually located, the Borough will obtain easements from Wiggins Street "around the transformer" to improve access to the current site.

access road, must be met, and if the Canal Commission did not grant the easement, the Board would have to schedule a new public hearing.

As he did in 1993, Marvin Reed stressed that the property not safe to develop unless there was an emergency road.

Mr. Letizia said the developer would prefer not to install bituminous bike path for aesthetic reasons, but would comply with this condition if needed. Township Engineer Bob Kiser said he would recommend a bituminous bike path since it would be in keeping with the other Township bike paths.

In response to Phyllis Marchand's question of whether there was an alternative to bituminous, Mr. Kiser said that other materials would require more maintenance. "The bike path is in the Township right of way, and the Township ould maintain it," he said.

In its vote to grant final approval to the project, the Planning Board gave Mr. Kiser flexibility to modify the materials used in the bike path.

Rushbrook Development received preliminary subdivision and site plan approval in 1992, with 23 building lots having access from Pretty Brook Road and five lots having access from Stuart Road West. The property's frontage is on both Pretty Brook Road and Stuart Road West.

In April 1993, the Appellate Division of Superior Court reversed the Board's approval and a new application hearing was held in the summer of 1993. This new hearing resulted in preliminary subdivision and site plan approval for 24 lots, with 21 lots having access from Pretty Brook Road and four lots (reduced to three) having access from Stuart Road West.

In 1996, the project was divided into two phases, and the Planning Board granted final approval to Phase I. This contains approximately 23 acres and consists of three lots off Stuart Road West. It has not yet been developed, hough Mr. Letizia said the developer of Phase II, Princeton Real Estate, has begun negotiations with the owner of the site.

The Phase I parcel also includes a lot of approximately 7.49 acres, known as Tent Rock, which will be dedicated to Princeton Township and which abuts the Woodfield Reservation.

The 1993 approval restricted lots in Phase II to a disturbance limitation of 25 percent and an impervious coverage limitation of 14,250 square feet. A conservation easement was required over any portion of a lot containing critical environmental areas such as wetlands, floodplains, waterway corridors, boulder fields, and steep slopes. This restriction still applies.

The 21 building lots in Phase II will be situated on three cul-de-sacs to be built off a single entrance road from Pretty Brook Road.

New Seminary Building

he Planning Board Thursday night also gave final site plan approval to Princeton Theological Seminary to construct a 1½-story, 4,450-square-foot addition north of Erdman Hall, which will connect to Erdman through a new lobby. The building is located between Edgebral Street and Library Place, on the Seminary's campus. The addition will contain administrative offices, a lounge, and the main conference facility for the Seminary's Center for Continuing Education.

In October 1997, preliminary final site plan approval had been granted for renovations to the existing Erdman Hall building. When complete, the renovations will convert the 84-unit Erdman Hall into 61 units and office space for the Seminary's Center for Continuing Education.

In response to concerns by nelghbors, the Planning Board included a set of conditions on the Erdman Hall renovation, conditions which were approved by the Seminary.

These related to shielding the building's lights from homes on Edgehill Street and defining the nature of the building's use. The agreed-on definition stated that the facility, used for continuing education, would be limited to official guests of the seminary, participants in continuing education programs sponsored by the seminary, and members of the seminary community.

Other conditions included the provision of a better buffer around the parking area and the cooling tower; a requirement to specify the method of tree protection during construction; and the replacement of any trees damaged during construction.

The original application also called for the construction of a three-story 7,015-square-foot addition to the rear of Erdman Hall. After neighbors voiced concerns, the three-story addition was withdrawn and the Seminary began meeting with its neighbors to discuss location, size, and landscaping. As a resust of these discussions, the Seminary considerably scaled back the size of the building.

The site is in the Borough's Mercer Hill Overlay Historic District, and the seminary has also been meeting with the Borough's Historic Preservation Review Committee. In a June 23 memo, the committee's chairperson, Susanne Hand, asked that a subcommittee of the HPRC review a revised architectural plan of the new addition for its appropriateness and visual compatibility with the existing Erdman Hall and the Historic Preservation District.

The committee's concern focused on the scale and size of the features of the front elevation, including the bowed window, column and comice features, and the shape of the Several design changes have already been put into effect, and Seminary attorney Ann Reichelderfer told the Planning Board that the Seminary has agreed to work with the Historic Preservation Review Committee on all final design issues,

After the vote, Planning Board Chair Corinne Kyle said there had been a nice demonstration of cooperation throughout the entire approval process.

In other business, the Planning Board approved a resolution opposing a proposal by the State DOT to remove stoplights at the Washington Road and Harrison Street intersections of Route 1, and to allow right turns only from these exits.

It's Not the Deer Who are the Problem But Frenzied Drivers in Speeding Cars

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I applaud the letter that was written by Jon Salmon in last week's TOWN TOPICS. Mr. Salmon has the courage to address the real issues regarding the "deer problem" in this

There are simply too many cars and too many drivers who speed down roads without a care for anyone or anything in their frenzied path. Why do we continue to accommodate cars and the menaces who drive them? We need to enforce lower speed limits, discourage driving everywhere, and above all show some responsibility for our driving actions.

Unlike the idiots who currently flood the TV car ads flooring accelerators and racing through towns — let's all ride our bikes, walk more, and at least try to have some respect for our surroundings when we are in the car.

It's not the deer that's the big problem here, it's us.

Small Sacrifices Will Help Us Continue Observances of Our Patriotic Holidays

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Hurral for the Princeton fireworks and the same for the hometown Memorial Day parade but how disappointing to learn that only about 90 people and organizations (that's right — only about 90) have given anything to the Spirit of Princeton fund to help keep these good things going.

Come on, folks. Forget the swordfish for dinner and open a can of tuna fish. Forget the Ice cream cone or coffee when in town. Give what you would have spent to the fund. Big Is nice but small can be beautiful, too. So mail your check to the Spirit of Princeton in care of Herb Hobler, 40 North Tulane, Princeton 08540.

No check? No stamp? No problem — just drop off your gift to the fund at Ray Wadsworth's Flower Market in the walkway at 261/2 Witherspoon Street. A couple of dollars from a lot of us will do wonders. Go for it!

Entire School Board and Administration Worked to Retain Talented Art Teacher

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I'd like to share some good news about the Princeton public schools. One of the two very talented art teachers at Princeton High School, John Kavalos, was offered an attractive position at a highly-regarded private school in New York City. Quite a number of students and parents were distressed about the possibility of losing this respected teacher and contacted the administration and Board of Education, who were not unaware of the situation.

Some of those same parents and students spoke of this teacher's value to the school at the June 23rd Board of Education meeting. I'm very happy to report that John Kavalos will again join Linda Nickman as part of the outstanding team of art teachers at Princeton High School next year, and hopefully for many years hence.

As one who has witnessed some of the tensions in our public schools, it was gratifying to see Dr. Swirsky, Dr. Ginsburg, the entire School Board, parents and students, work cooperatively to resolve this Issue.

As a professional in the visual arts field, I am heartened by the rise in achievement, excitement and enrollment in the visual arts program at Princeton High School. This year, there is a significant increase in graduating seniors attending professional art schools or majoring in art at liberal arts Institutions, due largely to the guidance and mentoring of Mr. Kavalos and Ms. Nickman. I have every expectation that the visual arts program at Princeton High School will now match the renown and regard of the music and drama programs.

Spirit of Princeton Committee Appreciated Police and Fire Department Cooperation

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The Spirit of Princeton Committee is most pleased and grateful for the many complimentary comments we've received about the Memorial Day Parade and the fireworks on July 2nd. It is highly satisfying to know so many individuals and families were joined together in these events that speak to our American heritage.

However, we also were overwhelmed at the great cooperation we received from so many members of police and fire departments in the area. This was particularly noticeable at the fireworks when their attention to the security and safety of 3000 to 4000 people was simply outstanding.

A tip of the hat from us all to the West Windsor Police, to the Princeton University Security staff, to the Princeton Borough and Princeton Township police, the Princeton Public Works staff, to the Princeton and West Windsor fire departments and to the Princeton and West Windsor first ald and rescue Squads.

It was not just that they were there - It was obvious they cared. Having vehicle lights on and flashlights along dark lanes after the fireworks made us proud to be associated with them. We know the families attending noticed too.

Thanks to everyone. And, oh yes, to the State Corrections Department who had six trimates clean up afterwards.

We look forward to staging both events next year knowing full well how professional the security and safety will be.

THEATER

Bill McCleery Retires as Theater Reviewer For Town Topics After 28 Years on the Job

t 87, after 28 years at the task, Bill McCleery is stepping aside as theater reviewer for TOWN TOPICS. He had earlier retired as lecturer in playwriting at Princeton University and from teaching a playwriting workshop at The Lawrenceville School.

But Bill McCleery isn't retired - not by a long shot. He reports with satisfaction that he has had some interest in his new play, The Gender Jungle, and Is hoping for an off-Broadway production. The four-character play revolves around an older woman who has "adopted" a young couple and who wants them to have children so she can be a grandmother.

He is also thinking of rewriting another of his plays, Motch Ploy, which had been presented on the Princeton University campus in 1976. "I've never given up interest in that," said Mr. McCleery. "What I say is, 'I don't write plays, I grow them."

One of his favorite occupations now is vis-Iting area schools to read the book he wrote in 1947 while at the MacDowell Colony for his 5-year-old son "who is now 57." Entitled Wolf Story, the book was republished by The Shoestring Press In 1988. The New York Times Sunday Book Review called it "a little work of art, and said that it "has to last ill McCleery was born in Hastings, Nebraska in 1911. His father was a real estate agent and later a postmaster in Blue Hill, Neb. His mother, a musician, sent him through college by playing the plano and then the plpe organ in a movie house in Hastings.

After graduating from the University of Nebraska in 1931, Mr. McCleery was hired as a reporter on the Omaha World Herald. A few months later he moved to Hearst in New York, and then to the Washington Bureau of The Associated Press

This was 1932, the first year of Franklin Roosevelt's presidency, and the young reporter covered FDR's press conferences in the Oval Office.

"We all bellied up to the President's desk and he sat there with his clgarette holder. He had all that legendary charm and a great sense of humor, and he handled the press very well.

"We all knew Roosevelt's personal life was not strictly kosher, but neither was ours. So nobody would have thought of blowing his

A man who has had ten full-length plays McCleery also managed to fit in an impressive career in publishing.

He was made executive editor of the Assoclated Press Feature Service (at 25), served on the staff of Life magazine, as Sunday editor of the legendary New York newspaper, PM; and as associate editor of the Ladies Home Journal.

While with the Associated Press, he came up with the idea of interviewing President Roosevelt's mother, Sarah Delano Roosevelt, for a Mother's Day article. He contacted her and was admitted to her house in Manhattan's east sixties.

"I spoke with her and she sald she wouldn't do an Interview, but she'd be glad to talk to me. So we went to her upstairs living room and I changed a light bulb for her. We got to talking. I couldn't take any notes because I wasn't supposed to be interviewing her.'

After an hour, the young reporter charged back to his office, transcribed his mental notes, wrote everything up, and took it back to Mrs. Roosevelt. "And she okayed it. It was an extraordinarily popular piece. It ran in thousands of papers."

Mr. McCleery traces his desire to write plays to the University of Nebraska, where there was an organization, "obviously based on Princeton's Triangle Club," that put on all-male musicals and toured the state. "In my sophomore year I wrote a play that won the contest and was produced. And I think that's when I really got hooked."

In the years when television offered original live drama, Mr. McCleery wrote a dozen one-hour television plays. They appeared on major networks and featured such actors as Cornella Otis Skinner, Rosalind Russell, Hume Cronyn, Nanette Fabray, Sarah Churchill, Dennis King, and Elaine Stritch.

Two Plays on Broadway

wo of his plays were produced on Broadway, Hope for the Best, in 1945, starring Franchot Tone and published and professionally produced, Mr. Jane Wyatt; and Porlor Story, in 1947, starring Walter Abel.

> His play, Good Housekeeping, starring Helen Hayes, was about to open in New York in 1949, when the death of the star's 18year-old daughter, who would have made her Broadway debut in the play, caused Its cancellation.

> "I worked with Helen Hayes on two stage plays and one television play," said Mr. McCleery. "She was called the First Lady of the American Theater. She was a very strong woman, and I was with her at a very sad time in her ble, when her daughter died.

Miss Hayes in 1964 starred in Mr. McCleery's Good Morning Miss Dove at Catholic University in Washington, D.C. The play, based on the novel by Frances Gray Patton, is still widely performed in American high schools.

When Good Housekeeping was in summer stock, Mr. McCleery was offered a job as editor at the Ladies' Home Journal, He refused, saying he'd had it with editing and was going to be a playwright.

"I held on for ten years and I almost got on Broadway with something. I got into televislon when it was live, in New York. Then it all moved out to Hollywood. I never wanted to go to Hollywood. So I went Into the Ladies Home Journal and said, 'You know that job you offered me ten years ago, I've been thinking it over and it sounds pretty attractive.

When Mr. McCleery was at the newspaper PM he hired Lillian Ross, who had been a secretary, as a reporter. She want on to become a highly respected writer at The New Yorker. He also gave another young woman, Shana Alexander, who became a successful author, her first reporting job.

PM, founded by Ralph Ingersoll in the late thirties, had as its primary mission to get the United States into World War II before it was too late, said Mr. McCleery. "We were considered quite radical, and we had some won-derful people on the staff. Margaret Bourke White was the photographer.'

"I was Sunday editor, and I used to say, 'PM was out to save the world and the Sunday magazine was out to save PM.' Our Sunday circulation was larger than our daily circulation.

One day, Ralph Ingersoll, a man who had been managing editor of Fortune at 30 and publisher of Time at 37, ripped out the first six pages of the Sunday news section for a story he'd written on what was happening in wartime England. Mr. McCleery was so offended that he wrote him a note that he thought would be his resignation.

"I said, 'I thought your piece on England was well done, and worth doing, and five pages longer than necessary or desirable.' I thought I'd get fired. Instead, a note came back almost immediately, "Gee Bill, I don't care how much space it takes If you like it."

MUSIC REVIEW

Even Those Who Eschew Typical Operatic Productions Will Delight in Opera Festival's Exuberant "Susannah"

o you think that opera means a long evening listening to over-costumed ladies and men sing interminable solos while they act out a silly plot in a foreign tongue? Then go see the Opera Festival of New Jersey's production of Susonnoh, which opened on Saturday evening at McCarter Theatre. This compact, compelling drama by an American composer is sung in English, features familiar American touches like square-dancing and church potlucks, and is performed superbly by the Opera Festival's ensemble.

And there is much in the opera and this performance that even the die-hard connoisseur can appreciate. Carlisle Floyd (b. 1926) wrote the words and music for Susannah In 1955, adapting the Biblicai story of Susannah and the Elders to rural Tennessee. His exploration of the devastating effects of hypocrisy and scape-goating takes on stark immediacy through its brilllant musical setting, which borrows the best from traditional opera, American folk music, and southern revival rites.

Powerful Operatics

ne of the ways Floyd creates such a powerful combination of European operatic elements (recitative and lyrical arias) and folk elements (the "Jaybird" song, the church hymns, the syncopated rhythms) is by introducing a singleline refrain or melodic motif in each scene that economically recurs at important moments. For example, the ilne "Ain't It a pretty night?" with its dramatic upward melodic leap and then simple step down, magically frames the second scene when Susannah reminisces with her friend Little Bat and her brother, Sam, about the square dance. Later in the opera, when the preacher confesses his sin, the refrain "O Lord, if it be thy will, let this cup pass from me," provides an effective and simple scaffold for his prayers.

Soprano Emily Pulicy is magnificent as Susannah, the young woman ostracized by the congregation and a victim of unforgivable hypocrisy by her neighbors and the preacher. Ms. Pulley's voice has a rich vibrato, especially evident in her lyrical solos, and impressive strength, heard in the anguished passages near the end of the opera. She gives marvelous shape to her two blg arias, "Ain't it a pretty night?" in Act I and "The trees on the mountain are cold and bare" in Act II.

Andrew Wentzel sings the part of the preacher, Olin Blitch, who arrives in town and promptly Joins the struggle for Susannah's soul. Mr. Wentzel's fine bass voice is big enough for the difficult sermon scene, but gentle and controlled enough for his aria "I'm a lonely man, Susannah," when he succumbs to the young woman's beauty and seduces her at a moment when she has no strength to resist. His solo to God the next morning is a masterful confession.

Ne'er-Do-Well Brother

enor Jay Hunter Morris plays Susannah's brother, a ne'er-do-well who is devoted to his little sister and disdainful of the hypocritical congregation. Mr. Morris' "Jaybird" song is wonderfully boisterous and fun; later he evokes tender compassion in his rendering of "It's about the way people is made." Beau Palmer turns in a very fine performance as Little Bat, the slightly retarded friend of Susannah who reports to her at regular Intervals what the church folks have been up to.

The four elders of the church and their wives supply plenty of holier-than-thou moments. Marion Pratnickl excels particularly in her role as Mrs. McLean. Her delivery of lines such as "I wouldn't tech those peas o'hern," referring to the dish Susannah offers at the church supper, is wonderfully accomplished. The chorus does an especially good job on the lovely hymn of invitation during the revival service.

You're in luck. The final performances of Susonnoh at McCarter Theatre takes place on July 17.

Playful Theatre Production's Staging of "Carousel" At Open Air Theatre Is Colorful and Energetic

Rodgers and Hammerstein classic came to Washington Crossing's Open Air Theatre this past weekend as Playful Theatre Productions brought Corousel to life. With a large cast that included a number of young children and Princeton Bailet School members, this young theatre company brought together actors, singers, and dancers with a wide range of regional theater experience. The show opened Thursday night; Saturday night's performance under a clear sky was colorful and energetic.

The dated yet melodramatic story of Carousel is well-known to theater lovers; the lli-fated pairing of pristine Julie Jordan with ne'er-do-well Billy Blgelow. These characters, from opposite sides of the tracks, were played in this production by Jackie Beach and James Ryan.

Mr. Ryan sounded young for a Billy Bigelow in his opening duet with Ms. Beach, but performed Carousel will be pre- his character's sented July 15, 16, trademark "Solil-17 and 18 at the oquy" with both Open Air Theatre at drama and Washington Crossing humor. Ms. State Park. For ticket Beach had one information catt 737. of the stronger 1826.

volces of the women's cast, which included

April Lombardo as Carrie Pipperidge and Valerie Sharper as matronly Nettle Fowler. Ms. Beach and Ms. Lombardo performed several spirited scenes together, and Ms. Sharper saucily held her large clan of townspeople together.

Two of the strongest performers in the show played virtually non-singing roles. Jlgger Craigin is a true tow-life who leads Billy Bigelow down the path to his demise. Jim Azzinaro was very convincing as this scoundrel. Unfortunately, the audience was unable to hear his one song in Act 11 because of problems with the miking system. The other non-singing role, that of carousel owner Mrs. Mulien, was played effectively by Marie Joseph.

A truly strong voice in this production belonged to Tom Baker, who played the role of Enoch Snow. Mr. Baker sang his part of the "older man" to Carrie Pipperidge nearly flawlessly.

Corousel is a very visual show, and the set design and costumes for this production were appropriately bright and colorful. The stage was centered around a carousel which cieverly turned, and an imaginative "stairway to heaven" brought Billy to his Judgment in the second act.

Clambake Cast "Real Nice"

here were many chorus members in this production, including a number of children and ballet students from the Princeton Ballet School, and all were dressed in bright colors for the carousel scene and pastels for the clambake scene. These costumes and sets presented a unlfled visual effect onstage.

The orchestra of winds and brass in the pit was led by Lou Woodruff, who has considerable experience with performances in the Open Air Theatre. His orchestra was consistent in performance, and his tempi for the songs helped move the show along. Mr. Woodruff had also schooled his singers well in the dialogue introductions to each song, and there were no apparent empty spaces in the numbers; Corousel can have a tendency to drag as a show overall, but director Tom Baker expertly kept the production under 21/2 hours.

Although the theater ran out of printed programs for Saturday night, Playful Theatre Productions should be pleased that they underestimated the number of people who would come to see the show. The weather has been good to this particular theater company, and a second weekend of performances coming up should bring out the crowds as the Open Air Theatre season rolls along through the summer.

The American Boychoir will perform an encore performance of Luciano Berlo's Schleswig Holsteln Musik Festival in Germany. Ofanim will be conducted by Mr. Berio, and wili feature the Orchestra della Toscana. The concert is scheduled for July 18.

Ofanim had its American premiere in October, 1997 at Carnegie Hail, also conducted by the composer with the Orchestra della Toscana, where it received an enthusiastic standing ovation as well as rave reviews. "Ofonim is the kind of music that promises to occupy our daily lives," wrote Bernard Holland in The New York Times.

"The boy singers (the spiendid American Boychoir) sing, hoop and shriek, their pure white timbre bleeding into the instrumental sound.

ART REVIEW

Four Local Artists Prompt Us to See Beneath Ordinary Reality In "Transcending the Surface: Layers, Patterns and Textures"

f "Transcending the Surface: Layers, Patterns and Textures," the exhibition now on view at The Gallery at Bristol-Meyers Squibb, is an indication of what is going on beneath the surface of four local artist's creative psyches, then Princeton's reputation as a town chock-full of intellectuals is true. The show runs the gamut of mediums - from Trudy Kraft's hothued, batik-like mixed media on paper patterns to Margaret Kennard Johnson's handmade paper with wire and rust compositions, with Susan Hockaday's photographs and Joy Saville's patchwork quilt-inspired fabric constructions included for good measure.

These artists depart widely from one another when it their Princeton roots but images. more important, an uncanny ability to convey their artistic message with utmost subtlety. There are bold colors and huge works on view, but each artist, in her own unique way, expresses herself through a quietly refined language of pattern, patterns of such dimension they manage to be simultaneously complex and simplistic ... even transcendent.

Trying to get a word with artist Margaret Kennard Johnson at Sunday's opening reception was a blt like getting an autograph from one of the Spice Girls. Ms. Johnson was beseiged with admirers, who only withheld their praise when offered the chance to listen to the soft-spoken artist discuss her luminous intaglio/rellef print, Story Upon Story, 1998. She told of her fascination with the antique Japanese metals excavated in archaeological digs, which she viewed in museums while living in Japan. Indeed, the print, which is an image of a house, has the burnished patina of aged metal.

"I didn't want this to be about color, I wanted it to evoke a mood." Ms. Johnson explained, "The title is a sort of a play on words, it could mean two things: the obvious one Is that houses often have two levels, a first and second story. The other meaning is about how people make their mark on a in addition to her time in Japan, Ms. Johnson's travels in Egypt have influenced her recent work. In her Egyptian Series, she veils her images to "make them seem more mysterious" by running an inked mesh screen through the printing press over the first intaglio print. This innovative technique has a stunning impact on the finished work, and is yet another manifestation of a recurrent theme in Ms. Johnson's career — combining various mediums to "interact in a dialogue with the paper."

"Botanical Clutter"

usan Hockaday's photographs "record patterns" apparent in the natural world, especially in the botanical clutter around us." Ms. Hockaday's work claims the rare achievement of distilling clutter to its essence. This will, perhaps, be most apparent to Princetonians in Towpath 1 and Towpath 2, which somehow capture all the natural mayhem and beauty that characterize the muchloved trail along the canal in one atmospheric image.

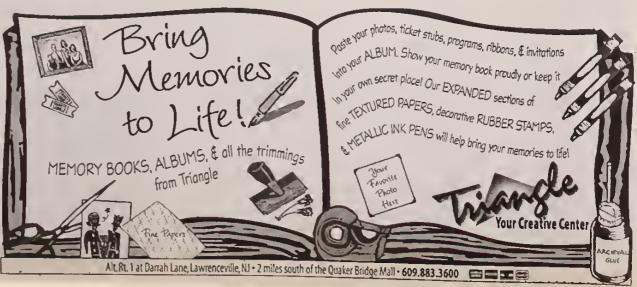

"I'm fascinated by vines," Ms. Hockaday confessed with a smile, speaking about her photographs at Sunday's reception. "The idea that they connect and tie together all sorts of other elements of nature." Her compositions also stress the concept that the boundaries of any given image are always arbitrary, and that inherent in every image is the fact that it is a small piece of a greater whole. Hence, the tendrils of seaweed or gnarled lengths of vine always lead beyond Ms. Hockaday's frames, reminding us that the visual patterns of nature are endless.

Pamela Sherin, curator of The Gallery at Bristol-Meyers Squibb, installed the works of the four artists currently on view according to their color (or lack thereof). The far side of the glass-walled exhibition space houses the vibrant works of Trudy Kraft and Joy Saville's bright fabric constructions, while the side closer to the gallery entrance features Ms. Johnson's subdued prints and paper studies and Ms. Hockaday's etheral photographs. Although simple, this is an effective arrangement because it allows the viewer the opportunity to confront the intellectual content of Ms. Johnson's and Ms. Hockaday's art, and it affords Ms. Kraft and Ms. Saville's color statements the benefit of long-range viewing.

Entrancingly Rhythmic

African printed fabrics, batik, and Haitian and Indian fabrics. Although her patterns are entrancingly rhythmic and masterfully balanced, Ms. Kraft claims, "I never really know how they're going to turn out until the end.'

As in the process of batik fabric painting, which Ms. Kraft claims as one of her primary influences, her works aren't created, they evolve. She employs a combination of watercolor, sumi ink, gouache, and masking — layering the effects of each different medium until she achieves her desired effect.

Ms. Kraft's work seemed to receive the most immediate and popular response from the crowd at Sunday's reception, with crowds lingering before her works, moving back and forward and back again, to take in the invigorating bravado of her color and study the narrative of her patterns as they unfold and resolve themselves. "I hope to make visible that which lies just beyond ordinary seeing," Ms. Kraft said of her work.

Lesson in Transcendence

he oversized geometric fabric constructions by Joy Saville are the result of Ms. Saville's artistic exploration of the interplay of color and its effect on pattern. She declined to comment on her work at the opening reception, but explained in the exhibition catalog that she "developed a technique that allows me to manipulate color instead of repeating a pattern, as is usually done with traditional patchwork techniques." Those who appreciate patchwork quilt making will undoubtedly marvel over the meticulous mastery Ms. Saville displays in constructing her fabric surfaces, but be forewarned — Ms. Saville's work is to traditional patchwork quiltmaking what Frank Stella's paintings are to Gilbert Stuart's.

Perhaps these four artists' common interest in layers, patterns, and textures stems from the fact that they are all women, and patterns are an Integral part of the "domestic arts," through which they, as little girls, might have found their first opportunity for artistic expression. But the work now on view at The Gallery at Bristol-Meyers Squibb is far more thought-provoking than more decorative art. These artists prompt the viewer to rethink the way we see ordinary reality, to transcend the surface.

"Transcending the Surface: Layers, Patterns, Textures" will be on view at The Gallery at Bristol-Meyers Squibb until September 7. The gallery is located three miles south of Princeton on Route 206. Gallery hours are Monday through Friday from 9 to 5, Thursday evenings until 7, and weekends from 1 to 5. For information call 252-6275.

Mr. Silvers has designed similar works for the covers of Newsweek, LIFE, and WIRED, as well as for IBM and Mastercard International ads. He was recently commissioned to produce portraits of Vice President Al Gore and Microsoft CEO Bill Gates.

As a graduate student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Media Lab, Mr. Silvers developed a computer program called "Photomosaics" and launched a new technique in digital art. The software sorts thousands of tiny images by color, density, internal shapes, and light, arranging them so that when viewed from a distrance, they combine to form a single image. Mr. Silver's book, Photomosaics was published last September.

According to Howard Levine, McCarter Theatre's art director, "We were seeking a way to effectively convey the wide range of programs McCarter has to offer. Rob Silvers' innovative Photomosaics process was the perfect fit.

It took seven McCarter staff members working on six computers for 15 hours a day over a two-week period to scan, size, name, and organize the photos. The 10,000 images provided by McCarter were written onto two recordable compact disks, enabling Mr. Silvers to "paint" the final image. A limited edition oster is now in the works, Mr. Levine said.

One of the most unusual nicknames for any team in big league baseball is the "Dodgers" — and do you know how that nickname came into being? ... The name was first applied to the Dodgers when they were in Brooklyn, years before they moved to Los Angeles ... When trolleys were introduced in Brooklyn, people there were called "trolley dodgers" because so many trolleys rumbled down their streets ... The Brooklyn baseball team was then named the "Trolley Dodgers" ... After a while, they shortened it to simply "Dodgers".

Bastille Day Ball Raises $100,000 For Area Agency

Day Ball was a sellout this year, as party-goers descended on the Governor's mansion on July 11, to celebrate French Independence. The Ball, a fundraiser for Trinity Counseling Service, brought in more than $100,000.

Amanda Stanton, co-chair of the event, said the Ball has grown in popularity over the last 15 years — from a small party of 100 to one of the most successful annual fundraisers in town. This year, more than 400 people attended.

"Trinity is now one of the The 15th annual Bastille few counseling services that does not have a minimum fee," according to the Rev. Peter K. Stimpson, executive director of the counseling ser-children, when I think a good spanking now and then would do wonders. What do you The trouble with a spanking is that when the sting of the swat slops, so too does the child's thinking about his or her disobedience. Not understand. ing why what they did was wrong, the child may leet like the victim, and simply learn to become better at hiding, waiting until parents are out of sight or perhaps. lying to them if they become suspicious Instead of becoming the neighborhood James Bond the child may become shy and withdrawn. Assuming that his own behavior gets him into trouble his may become an expert in guessing "What Mominy wants me to do." While this seems to produce a "model child. the child in actuality doubts his or her own autonomy and grows up thinking that being loved is conditional upon playing the game according to someune elac's rules. Even if successful, the child doubte his own worth, and resents constantly putting his own desires in second placo

How then does a parent discipline? The ebvious trick is to gain obodience without losing autonomy. Your friends are on the right track, as the goal is to help the child to think, toaching the child to talk out his behavior, making him responsible for his bohavior both by consciously making him choose it, and then making him accept the consequences of his choice.

Making the child choose his behavior involves making the choice very clear, both in terms of the behaviors involved and their consequences. Not eating spinach means Sally loses dessert, and not going to bed on timo tonight means Steve will have to go a hall-hour earlier for the next two nights. When the child protests by either whining or throwing a temper tantrum, the parent must onlorco the negativo consequence in a calm and consistent manner, rominding the child that tho choice was his.

The dynamics for older children are the same, simply involving a longer and more sophisticated discussion. While the value of a balanced meal or a good night's sleep is hard to dobato, what timo your teenage daughter comes home from a date is not quite so clear. The concerns of both adolescent and parents need to be shared, alternative solutions brainstormod, and a decision with consequences previously decided upon be enforced, but another discussion should occur to go over why her parents are so upset, and how she could have handled that situation more like an adult.

A few linal remarks are that the punishment should be meaningful. Sending Mike to his room may not mean much if he has a television, stereo, computer, comics, and toys there. Believe it or not, let the child propose his own punishment as this increases his sense of responsibility and decreases his picture of you as Adolf Hitler's clone. Also, calm down before talking, as losing your temper, calling your child "stupid," and imposing an unrealistic punishment will damage both your relationship with your child and his sell-image, not to mention having you rescind your punishment and thereby look inconsistent.

So, remember, reasoning with your child rather than striking him will produce a reasonable adult rather than an angry rebei or a compliant martyr.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

By Tod Peyton

TAMING TAXES!

Buying a home is a good idea for a number of reasons, and one of the most important is the tax savings. At first glance, it may look like the monthly costs for your mortgage and taxes are much higher than the rent for a comparable home.

If you are planning to buy a $200,000 home, for example, with a fixed-rate 30-year mortgage at 7.5% with annual taxes of $1800, your monthly cost (principal, interest and taxes) would be approximately $1,548. The good news comes when you consider your tax bracket. and calculate the amount you save each month. During the early years of your loan, almost all of the mortgage payment and all of your local real estate taxes can be deducted on your Federal returns. If you are in the 28% bracket for Federal taxes, you can save about $433 each month, bringing your net monthly housing bill down to $1,115. When you take into account your state and local taxes, you may save even more.

For dependable individual advice on buying or selling real estate, call Tod Peyton, Realtor or any Peyton Associate at 921-1550. Please feel free to stop by my office at 343 Nassau Street in Princeton.
